The ground of this Summer's survey by Prof-Hayden's party, hes between meridians 10. deg, and 100 deg, and o nin.; or from a point about farty inties east o Trenver, to the extreme western limit of Colorado ! and north and south between parallels 37 deg. and 41 deg, which mark the northern and southern boundaries of the Territory. The expectionary corps will be: divided into six rivisions. The first of these is called the primary triangulation party, and will be under the command of Mr. Gardner. The main lines of triangulation are taken by him, and are drawn from peak to peak; the highest being selected for this purpose. After him come i the topographers, who, working insule the lines an down, which sometimes have sides too uniterlong, select the smaller peaks in the designated area, and work cown, throwing the smaller triangles, and mapping out the country. By this method the work of surgey is constantly progressing. The field divisions have their outline maps ic dy when they start out, and know ex-actly what ground to cover jaid what is necessary to be done on it; while the primary trian gulation party is always ahead, mapping out new work, which may be done the same season, or the next, as circumstances dictate. The system is the same as that employed in the survey of : Switzerland, which was the most perfect piece of work of its kind. The fallest peaks are selected old man sear : for the great lines, because they rise high above street tireg the timber line, and present no obstacles to the sight.

The survey corps will take the field in six divisions, each with its allosted territory for work Some years ago, the whole cor is kept together, but it was bome better to divide it in the manner stated. Mr. Gardner's party will cover a wide area, planning out new work or field naries; Mr. Wilson's division will take the south-eastern portion of the Territory; Mr. Holmes' the south western. Mr. Gannett's the north-western, and Mr. Beech er s the north-eastern. Each of these topographica and geological divisions will aver age six men to the party; three or four seien the men, two parkers, and a cook. Basiles these, there's a photographic party under Mr. ackson, who have no special held, but travel over the whole area, taking views of the various points of interest, and of such special objects seculiar to the country as may seem desirable. This year however, their attention will be de voted marily to the Indian ruins in South west. ern Colorado. The work of this party is some thing which interests everybody; while only the select lew can appreciate the discoveries of the geologist, or the exact measurement of the topo graphers, every one can understand a picture. After the Summer's survey, Prof. Hayden de votes the Winter and Spring to perfecting the sketch in, is which have been made.  $\mathbb{J}G(X)$ GREG. The best of prisons are gloomy, unlovely places, and the sunshine which streams over the walls, and filters through the bars seems cold and cheerless. The prisoners are discouraged and some of them desperate, feeling as if every man's hand was against them, and the keepers must be watchful, distant, and determined. Jays come. days 30, and sometimes the rugged walls, paved floors, and from bars so change the nature of a personer that his mind loses all good thoughts. t used to be thus in all prisons, but there are exceptions now. At the Detroit House of Correction a year or so ago, the high, white-washed walls of the corrulors were firmished with brackets and flower pots to relieve the monotony brackers and nower pass to reserve the monotony and take away some of the gloom. One would scarcely think that the rough looking, we ked men sent there for robbery, burglary, aron, and graver crimes would have cared for the change, yet they gladly welcomed it. A rose, or gera bunn, or tulip, or pank, seemed to bring liberty and sunshine a suttle nearer, and to crise the evil out of their hearts, and it was a strange, sight to see harcened criminals watering and mourishing the tender plants and watching their growth, Two or three months before the brackets were hung up, a prisoner came from one of the Ferri tories an old, suffer booking, bad-tempered man, convicted of robbing the mask. They called him "Greg," as short for Gregory, and it wasn't long taking they made it "I g y Greg." I e was ugly. Ie refused to work, cared nothing for rules and regulations, and twonty eight days of his first month were spent in the solitary? for bad scharger. He was expostulated with, threatener, and punished, but he had a wil as hard as iron. It hadn't a briend in the orison, and the knowledge of it seemed to make nim more ugly and desperate. When the leackets were hung up there was one to spare, am it was staced near the door of t'g y (reg's ce I until another soot cou d be found. No one had any hope that the ole man's heart con d be softened, some said he would tiash the flower pot to the fuor.

When he came in from the shop his face exressec surring at sight of the little green rose, sush so close to the door of his cell. It seemed it, carefully placed it back, and it was noticer that the hard lines maked out of his lace for a time. No one said anything to him, but the next morning before he went to work he carefully watered the rose and his eyes lest something of their sul en look; Would you believe hat the ittle rose bush proved more powerful than all the arguments and threats in the keepers? Their progress was only about half a mile per day, so that when they reached the present site of Col rado Springs wheat and oats were harvested. They were so numerous in places that the surface of the earth seemed to be in a quiver; but they apreared to follow the streams instead of being distributed universally over the country as at present, and their advance was much impeded by the water running in the disches. In attempt ing to cross countless numbers of them were drowned. On Bear Creek they were much more numerous than on the Fountain, and the datches on the former were so clogged up by the drown 4rd that the live insects passed over on the bodies of their dead companions.
